LARGE TRUCK IS STRUCK BY TRAIN

John Elsner and John Wise Hurt In Accident on Baltimore & Ohio Crossing This Morning

STOCK WAS NOT INJURED

Sixteen Hogs, A Steer and Calf Being Delivered to Market—Truck Demolished

John Elsner, a farmer residing south of Hayden and John Wise a resident of Jennings county who is engaged in the trucking business narrowly escaped serious injury at 6:20 this morning when a truck in which they were riding loaded with sixteen hogs, a steer and Jersey calf, was struck by Baltimore & Ohio express train No. 30 at the Chestnut street and St. Louis avenue crossing. Mr. Elsner escaped with a broken rib and slight bruises about the body and Wise received a cut on top of his head. Both men were able to complete their business in the city before returning to their homes.

The hogs, steer and calf all escaped without a scratch. The train was in charge of W. H. Cunningham, engineer and C. Greer, conductor. According to some who witnessed the accident the train which was going east, had stopped for the block below Walnut street and was moving at a rate of from eight to twelve miles per hour when the accident happened. Railroad men say the fact that the men and stock escaped serious injury is evidence that the train could not have been moving at a speed of over twelve miles per hour.

The train struck the rear end of the truck turning it around and the front end collided with an express car. The hogs and cattle were knocked from the truck and started to running wild over the streets. The accident was witnessed by Frank Colemeyer and Mead Downs, members of the fire department, and others who rushed to the men's rescue. The front of the truck where the driver and Mr. Elsner were seated was enclosed and neither of the men were thrown from the car. The train was brought to a standstill as soon as possible and the members of the train crew rushed to the men's assistance.

The truck was completely demolished and is practically a total loss. It has been in service about seven months and fully equipped cost about $3,000. It weighed 4500 pounds empty.

The stock was being delivered to Milt Hazard, Reddington stock buyer, at the Pennsylvania freight yards having been sold to him by Mr. Elsner. It is understood that Mr. Wise, the owner of the truck, has employed an attorney to file suit for damages against the railroad company alleging that the train did not whistle for the crossing and that he did not know the train was approaching until too late to stop the car. The crossing watchman does not go on duty at the corner of Chestnut street and St. Louis avenue until 7 a. m.

Following the accident this morning the sixteen hogs, steer and calf were rounded up and driven to the Pennsylvania stock pen and were loaded today for shipment to the city market. Considerable trouble was had in running down the steer which was badly frightened as a result of the accident and run wild after gaining its freedom.

GRANGE MASTER SPEAKS AT ROTARY

Jesse Newsom, of Columbus, Makes Thoughtful Address at the Tuesday Evening Luncheon.

COMPARES CITY AND COUNTRY

Urges More Work and Less Indulgence in Ease as Remedy for Present Living Conditions.

"Six days shalt thou labor" was the burden of an address made at the Rotary Club meeting Tuesday evening by Jesse Newsom, Master of Columbus Grange. Mr. Newsom was the guest of Oscar E. Carter at the regular weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club. "And there is nothing in the commandment to labor six days to indicate the number of hours per day," continued the speaker. As a farmer, he said, I begin work soon after sunrise and quit at dusk. It is the only way the farmer can supply the food necessary to feed the world. He spoke of the lure of the city for the young men of the farm; better wages, shorter hours, more amusement, gayer life all make their appeal. But the farmer cannot compete with the city in the matter of hours and wages. If he did the present high cost of living would seem a mere trifle compared with the prices it would be necessary to charge for farm products.

We are out of balance, he said, and no amount of legislation or speech-making, or congressional investigations will remedy the situation. There is but one remedy and that remedy is more work and less indulgence in idle pleasure. The remedy must be applied as inexorably as the laws of nature. There is no escape from God's law, "six days shalt thou labor," and until the

STANLEY SWITZER MAY HAVE NO OPPOSITION

Is Only One So Far That Has Announced Candidacy For State Treasurer of Legion.

Members of Seymour Post No. 89 of the American Legion are of the opinion that their candidate for state treasurer, Stanley Switzer, of the Seymour National bank, has a splendid chance of being elected at the state meeting to be held at Vincennes. Although the state convention will be held within twelve days Mr. Switzer is the only candidate announced for the office of treasurer and it is possible that he will have no opposition. However, the local post is preparing to boost their candidate at the convention and will put forth every effort to assure his election. There are four candidates to date for the office of state commander.

Ticket Sales For Independence Day Celebration Largely Increased Last Few Days.

CONTESTANTS WORKING HARD

Beautiful Sonora Phonograph Will Be Given to the Queen of The American Legion.

Much interest is being manifested in the contest for the honor of being "Queen of The Legion." During the last few days the ticket sales for the Independence Day celebration to be held at Shields Park, July 5, have been largely increased and the contestants are working hard.

Miss Esther Short was leading in the campaign at the last count made by the ticket committee and Miss Della Tindler, of Cortland is holding second place. Owing to the heavy voting it is expected that some changes may be made this week. It is understood that a number of contestants who have not been taking an interest in the contest have started to work and it is possible that some new names may be at the head of the list this week if all reports are true.

Rex Whitson, chairman of the ticket committee, stated today that

CONFLICTING STORIES TOLD

Under Garments Torn and Body Was Deeply Scratched—Was Born in Jackson County.

The Indiana Daily Times carried the following story concerning the mysterious death of Mrs. Selma Henderson, a former resident of Norman Station, who was found dead at her home at Indianapolis Monday morning. Mrs. Henderson was the daughter of Enoch S. Martin, with whom she lived. The deceased was born at Norman Station and spent the greater part of her life in that vicinity.

Mrs. Henderson lived in an apartment with her father, Enoch S. Martin.

When the police entered the room at 6:20 o'clock this morning they found the body lying on a bed, it being partly covered with bed clothing. The young woman's body was clad in underwear which was torn. Her body from the waist upward was deeply scratched.

That these scratches were not made by the woman's finger nails

WILL FIGHT FOR IRISH FREEDOM

Another Problem for the Democrats to Solve at San Francisco National Convention.

MARSHALL NOT A CANDIDATE

Vice-President Declares He Will Take No Action on Eighteenth Amendment.

By United Press.

San Francisco, Cal., June 16.—Another problem for the Democratic national convention developed here today when the announcement was made that there will be a battle for the "freedom of Ireland." Charles Boeschmidt, of Illinois, was authorized for the statement that the Illinois delegation will start the fight.

"We have been freeing Ireland for thirty years in Illinois," he said. "Our delegation will fight here to give Ireland anything she wants."

With the Illinois delegation is former Governor Dune, one of the three Irish Americans who raised the Versailles peace question. It was believed Dune would be on the resolution committee and therefore, have an opportunity to fight the case. The Irish question is considered popular in San Francisco and an Irish plank would draw gallery support.

Marshall declared that he will take no action on the eighteenth amendment. The Irish question, he said, "is none of America's business." Marshall said he would support enforcement of the prohibition law. Marshall also let it be known that he was not a candidate for the presidential nomination and said he did not want it. The vice-president refused to comment on the nomination of Senator Harding and Governor Coolidge by the Republicans. It is understood, however, that he sent the following telegram to Coolidge: "You have my sincere sympathies."

KANSAS INDUSTRIAL COURT IS CONDEMNED

American Federation of Labor Will Help Kansas Labors Fight for Repeal of Court Law.

By United Press.

Montreal, June 16.—The Kansas Industrial Court was condemned as a machine "for confiscation of liberty" in a resolution adopted unanimously here today at the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor. The resolution pledged the full power of organized labor in the United States to assist Kansas workers in fighting for a repeal of the law establishing the court.

The court establishes compulsory labor the resolution alleged and constitutes denial of human rights. The resolution was offered as a substitute for four other resolutions condemning the court.

GOMPERS OPPOSED TO LABOR PARTY

Stands Ready To Defeat Any Attempt to Win Endorsement by The Convention.

WILL NOT FORCE ISSUE

American Federation President Says Movement Tends to Make Labor Politically Impotent.

By United Press.

Montreal, Que., June 16.—President Samuel Gompers and his supporters in the annual convention of the American federation of Labor today stood ready to defeat any attempt to win endorsement by the convention for the labor political party.

Gompers has fought the labor party movement since its inception on the ground that it tends to render organized labor politically impotent.

John Fitzpatrick of Chicago, head of the labor political party today was jockeying to prevent the question becoming an issue.

So far the Gompers element has given no indication of intending to force the issue unless it should be raised by Fitzpatrick. The labor party nominating convention is scheduled for July 10 at Chicago. The nominating convention of the non partisan committee of 48 also is scheduled for Chicago July 10.

Under the original plans of Fitzpatrick, the two conventions will collaborate on a platform and selection of candidates. Gompers, Fitzpatrick and Hays are keenly waiting the outcome of the Democratic national convention San Francisco late this month. A candidate who seem reactionary from Labor's standpoint would give the labor party a new lease on life according to reports here.

SENATOR HARDING WAS NOT BORN IN LOG CABIN

Republican Candidate for President Preparing to Leave Washington Sunday.

By United Press.

Washington, June 16.—Nineteen holes of golf will probably break the monotony today for Warren G. Harding, Republican candidate for president.

Senator Harding finds himself in a continuous routine of answering telegrams and receiving visitors bent on paying their respects.

Harding expects to play today on President Wilson's favorite course at the Washington golf and country club across the Potomac river in Virginia.

He plans to leave Washington Sunday but has not chosen the place where he will spend a few days before going to Marion, Ohio, where he will launch the active campaign.

The senator today squeaked the "log cabin" story just as the campaign orators were ducting it off and remodeling it for use this summer.

"I am sorry to have to say it, but the truth is I was not born in a log cabin," Senator Harding said today.

HARDING REPLIES TO GENERAL WOOD'S TELEGRAM

Both Interested in Same Great Good To Common Cause—Restore Republican Party.

By United Press.

Washington, June 16.—Senator Warren G. Harding today replied to a telegram of congratulations sent him by Major General Wood, defeated candidate for the presidential honors. "I know we are both interested in the same good to our common cause," Harding wrote. "And I feel conscious that you will be deeply interested in bringing about a restoration of the Republican party administration in Washington and the return to the constitutional methods of government."

OUR AMERICANISM.

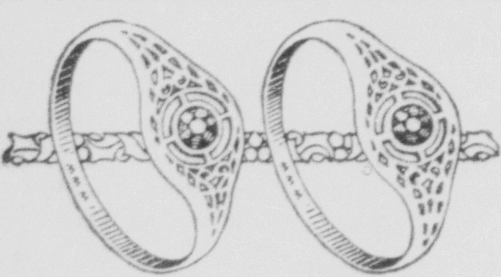

We are facing today as severe a test of our Americanism as we did in 1917 when we joined our Allies in the great world war. Then our problems were with a foreign foe. Today our problems are within our own borders. Then we were united, standing shoulder to shoulder with grim determination to win the war and to win it quickly. Since the armistice was signed we have relaxed from the strain of war and have divided ourselves into groups seeking our own interests. Then we displayed to the world a remarkable example of high purpose and noble resolve in an unselfish cause. Men gave their lives amid a hail of shot or bursting of bombs for the liberty and freedom that America has made the priceless possession of its citizens. They gave lives which they prized as highly as we prize our own, that liberty "might not perish from the earth."

We need today a new inbreathing of that same spirit. We need to get back to the old time decencies, back to the time when disregard or defiance of law met its fitting punishment. We are tenting on the old camp ground of the constitution and in its defense we need to show the same loyal spirit that characterized the men who wrote and fought for the adoption of our constitution the greatest charter of human liberty under the sun. We must have in these days of peace the same self-sacrificing devotion to public welfare that they displayed or the self-sacrificing patriotism during the war will have been in vain.

We are facing the certainty of a letting down from the present hectic conditions. How soon this letting down may come and whether it will come sooner in our country than in other countries remains to be seen. It is no time for flippancy or for cynicism, but for a resolute facing of the future and its problems in the same spirit that gave us our constitution and our government. We cannot value too highly the freedom we enjoy, bought as it has been with a great price from Lexington and Concord to Chateau Thierry and the Argonne.

In this period of uncertainty the Republican party has chosen for its candidates men whose record is clearly for calm, dispassionate consideration of the nation's great problems and for vigorous execution of the law. Both Harding and Coolidge stand for the highest type of Americanism. Both are clear thinkers with minds of their own. They are the type of men needed to bring chaos out of the present disordered conditions and to place our country again in the forefront of the nations where freedom and liberty and equality of opportunity are offered to every citizen.

VICTORY BONDS.

This week a large number of people are clipping the coupons on their Victory bonds. Every interest period on both the Liberty and the Victory bonds emphasizes the value of retaining these bonds by their owners. The market value is below par now because so many who bought bonds during the stress of war have been willing to sacrifice them and because some large holders have preferred to sell at a discount to secure money for use in business. The market price will come back to par and the government will pay full value for every outstanding bond at maturity. Keep your bonds and if you have surplus money buy more of them, is sound advice to any investor.

Two or three years ago you would have listened to more varying opinions about tires than you could shake a stick at. Mileages, construction, treads and whatnot.

It's different now. Tire users are working towards a unanimous feeling.

WOMAN MAY HAVE BEEN MURDERED

was evident, according to Dr. George R. Christian, deputy coroner, who examined the body.

The body was removed to the undertaking establishment of W. T. Blasengymn, 1623 Shelby street.

An autopsy was ordered. Previous to the autopsy Dr. Christian said that the woman's death appeared to be due to poison.

Mrs. Henderson has been employed at a restaurant on Illinois street, near George street, and came home about 7 o'clock last night.

Her father said he came home at 7:30 o'clock and that she was standing on the stairway singing.

He declared that he did not leave the house until after midnight.

This statement differs from that of Mrs. Jesse Hart, 810 Harmon street, who has been caring for Henry Henderson, 15-months-old son of the dead woman.

She said she brought Harry over to his mother at 8:30 o'clock last night and that Mrs. Henderson was raving "like an insane woman," and that her father was not at home.

Mrs. Hart said she took the child back to Harmon street.

Martin said another child of his daughter, Edna Henderson, 3, was at the home of Mrs. Susan Alice Borden, of Bedford, Indiana, mother-in-law of Mrs. Henderson.

"It was after midnight when my daughter called me," said Martin.

"She seemed well early in the evening and had smoked a cigarette before going to bed, but when she called me at midnight she was very ill.

"I went to the telephone and called the city dispensary, but they told me they could not send a physician until Monday afternoon.

"I bought a bottle of soda water and some ice cream for her and she drank part of the soda water.

"I went to bed and it was about 5:30 o'clock this morning when she called me and I went to the phone to call the dispensary again, but when I came back she was dead.

"I did not notice the scratches on her body until after I returned and found her dead."

Martin said he was separated from the mother of Mrs. Henderson more than fifteen years ago and that he had remarried, but that his second wife killed herself by diving out of the second story window of the St. Vincent's hospital eight years ago.

Mrs. Henderson was married at Norman Station, Jackson county, Indiana, and her husband from whom she is separated, is supposed to be at that place.

Martin said his daughter separated from her husband after he had beaten her.

That there was trouble at the Norwood street address last night was evident for it is said that Mrs. Henderson had a violent quarrel with Mrs. Cora Collee, who occupies the flat across the hall, blaming Mrs. Collee with calling the police to Mrs. Henderson's home.

The police will question another man said to be the sweetheart of the dead woman, if he is still in the city.

Mrs. Hart declared that Mrs. Henderson often drank perfume, pouring it into coco cola, but only one perfume bottle was found and no other bottle except one partly filled with coca cola was in the room where the body was discovered.

The building on Norwood street is a two-story brick building into two apartments on each floor.

The one occupied by Martin and his daughter is four rooms on the east side of the second floor of the building and had scant furniture.

A broken dish on the floor of a room adjoining that in which the body was found indicated that there might have been some kind of a scuffle.

Martin has two other daughters in Indianapolis, Mrs. Ethel Landers and Miss Inna Martin.

Bake Good Bread Better

—The second time it's baked, you call it Hot Bread.

The children just love it's crispy, tender goodness along with their milk and broth and stewed fruit.

Hot Bread is building food—equally good for the kiddies and grown folks. Give the plate of Hot Bread first place on your table.

Making Hot Bread is "easier than falling off a log." You do it this way—

Cut all the slices you need, but only part way through as shown here. Press the slices firmly together so as not to lose the loaf-formation. Place in a Bread-pan and slip into a hot oven for a few minutes.

STAR BREAD

"IT WAS BLUE AT HOME" HE STATES

Could Work But Little And Wife Also Sick—Spent Small Fortune In Search For Health

"After such wonderful results as my wife and myself have gotten from Tanlac I could not do otherwise than praise it," said Oma Willis, 108 Gilbert street, Evansville, Ind., who has been ear inspector for the Evansville and Ohio Traction Company for a number of years.

"By the help of Tanlac," continued Mr. Willis, "I have gotten rid of a case of stomach trouble and disordered kidneys that made life miserable for seven long years. I was never able to do any hard work, and spent months at a time in bed helpless as a child. I could get but very little sleep at night and never knew what it was to have a well day. My back kept me in misery all the time, my shoulders pained me so I could hardly raise my arms to put on my shirt and I always had to get someone to put on my collar and tie. My wife was in poor health, too, and this made it mighty blue at our home. I managed to get in a week's work now and then but it was always with the hardest sort of effort and lots of pain.

"We spent a small fortune and did everything possible trying to get our health back and I had lost nearly all hope of ever getting well. I had read about Tanlac and my druggist told me of the splendid results others were getting from it and advised me to try a bottle. At the time I began taking Tanlac I only weighed one hundred and fifty pounds and by the time the first bottle was gone my troubles were rapidly leaving and I noticed myself getting heavier. My appetite soon came back in full force and my stomach stopped troubling me after eating. My back not only feels as strong as it ever did, but the pain has all disappeared and my kidneys are in fine shape. In fact, I don't have a pain of any kind and I now balance the scales at one hundred and ninety-eight pounds. My wife has also taken Tanlac and it has made a new woman of her. I now have a fine healthy family and as happy a home as anybody."

Tanlac is sold by Seymour at Maxon's Pharmacy, by C. W. Taulman at Crothersville, and by Chas. Brock at Brownstown.

Barge, 63 Years Old, Sinks.

On old double-deck barge called the Harvest Queen, built in 1857, sank slowly upon the mud alongside the barge office through failure of her pumps to keep out the flood until repairs could be made in her leaking sides. She was towed here from Norfolk by the coast guard cutter Manhattan and was to be used as a temporary houseboat for the men of the coast guard service, who were compelled to give up their quarters in the municipal ferry terminal at South Ferry. Although the barge had a reputation for being an unusually leaky craft in her old days, an investigation will be made to ascertain if she was helped to the bottom by persons who had no wish to be housed aboard of her.—New York Tribune.

No Other Light Car Offers So Much

There is in the Cleveland Six an unusual degree of power, quick pick-up and extraordinary acceleration. It gives all the speed that any reasonable person would ever want to use, more than most drivers would ever care to use.

And with these qualities of day-in and day-out performance, the Cleveland embraces sturdiness, safety and real comfort.

These are factors that you care about. They mean much in the service and pleasure which you have the right to expect from your motor car.

Throughout, the Cleveland Six is a car of high quality featured by its own exclusive motor, ease of control in driving, most positive brakes, low underslung springs that wipe out the road-bumps, bodies of dignified and graceful design.

URGES PEOPLE TO FIGHT CATARRH WITH SIMPLE HOME MADE REMEDY

Can Make Pint at Home and Costs Little, Says Leading Druggist of Covington, Ky., Who Has Made Special Study of Catarrh.

Says: Inflamed Nostrils Invite Influenza

People who say that catarrh is a disease not to be taken seriously are harshly rebuked by a Kentucky druggist who has for years been much interested in the growth of this loathsome, yet altogether too common disease.

He claims that the sore, tender, inflamed membrane of the nostrils and throat is a prolific breeding ground for germs—not only the germs of Influenza, but many other kinds as well.

If people would only stop experimenting for two weeks and try a simple remedy made of Mentholized Arcine mixed with enough boiled water to make a full pint, half of the catarrh in this country would be abolished.

It's really no joke for people who don't know about this simple recipe to be constantly sniffing and snuffling, blowing and hawking, when all these obnoxious symptoms as well as the foul discharge can be made to disappear in a few days.

Ask for three-quarters of an ounce of Mentholized Arcine—that's all you need and after you have mixed it with enough boiled water to make a pint gargle the throat twice daily and sniff or spray some up the nostrils, as directed.

The tender nostrils will soon lose their soreness, heal up, and be clean and healthy.

Important Reminder: Just as soon as anyone in the family gets a cold in the head, check it at once with this same medicine.

consuming public is sufficiently hungry to see the real cause there will be no relief.

Mr. Newsom urged the different viewpoint of the urban and the rural citizen. You cannot blame the young men of the farm for seeking the life of the city if money and pleasure were the only considerations in life. But under the broad starlight dome the farmer gets a broader glimpse of heaven's beauty than the city dweller whose view is limited under the glare of the electric light. "God made the country but man made the city." The surroundings in the country are nature's handwork, the city surroundings are artificial. Our environment affects, our viewpoint with the result that the farmers belong to the conservative class that has always stood for obedience to and enforcement of law, and you never hear of radicals coming from the rural communities.

The address was heard with interest and close attention. T. S. Blish, president of the Rotary Club, presided. Brief talks on the Chicago convention were made by Geo. A. Clark and Rev. J. H. More. Prof. T. A. Mott spoke of his visit to the Rotary Club of South Bend. Volney Carter was also a guest of his father, O. E. Carter, and Mr. Beyers of Indianapolis, was the guest of W. L. Federmann.

Saving 3 Hours 53 Minutes on Every Bushel of Corn

MR. Frank D. Gardner in Successful Farming says that, with man power, from plowing to feed trough it takes four hours and thirty-four minutes work to raise one bushel of corn. The use of power machinery has reduced this to forty-one minutes, thus enabling one man to do the work of six.

The importance of this saving of time may be realized when we learn that for 1920 Iowa is short 50,000 farm hands. Similar conditions are reported from the Middle West generally. This presents a serious problem.

The answer is gasoline power used in tractor, truck and automobile. The food supply of the future depends upon gasoline.

Last year the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) provided the Middle West with power for 16,438,000 motor miles a day. Much of this went to the farms to help multiply the crops. Much of it was used in motor trucks to help the farmer get his crops to market.

The demand for gasoline was great, and the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) was ready with the supply. That silent, watchful readiness was based upon the foresight and resourcefulness of an organization trained to its task through years of experience.

The manufacture of gasoline is not the sole function of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana). Equally important is its service of placing the gasoline where the consumer can get it easily and quickly.

More than 1,300 Service Stations and over 7,000 tank wagons and trucks are operated by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) to make gasoline and lubricating oils constantly available for increasing the 1920 crops.

THE MAN WHO WASN'T HIMSELF

by ROBERT AMES BENNET

COPYRIGHT, BY W. G. CHAPMAN.

CHAPTER I.

Will o' the Wisp.

As he sauntered from the train in the rear of the hurrying crowd of his fellow passengers there was nothing peculiar in his appearance. His clothes were in good taste, his manner quiet and well-bred, his look intelligent, pleasant and indifferent. On the whole he gave every indication of being a manly and attractive young gentleman. He walked with the resilient step of an athlete in training—and in his mid-twenties.

The gatekeeper told him where he could check his suitcase. He started across the arcade to enter the depot. From outside the iron fence an elegantly dressed young fellow beside the nearest train waved a hand to him and called familiarly: "Hello, old man! Didn't know you were returning—what the deuce!"

The traveler, after a moment's quizzical scrutiny, had started on into the depot without betraying the slightest sign of recognition. The young elegant who had called to him flushed and bit his lip. As quickly his shallow gray-brown eyes hardened and he recovered his nonchalant poise. With a swiftness that was masked by the utter lack of hurry in his manner he slipped through the gate and across the arcade into the depot.

The sight of the man he had addressed brought him to an abrupt halt. He turned aside behind a pillar and paused to light a cigarette. The traveler was at the checking counter depositing his suitcase. Having received his check he turned away with the bearing of one who is in a strange place with no particular desire to do anything.

Before he had taken half a dozen steps he was rushed by a middle-aged man who might have passed for a promoter of a clubman of rather pronounced tastes. "Why, howdy, Mr. Lowrie! Back in Denver again, I see, and looking fit as a fiddle. Glad your stay east has done you so much good."

"You are slightly mistaken," replied the traveler, ignoring the other's outstretched hand. "I do not happen to be a comer-on, and I care neither for a little game nor a gold brick, thank you."

He went out through the main exit of the old depot, leaving the man who had accosted him agape and blankly disconcerted.

The traveler tensed with the upwelling of his energy. He noted the line of taxicabs drawn up outside the depot grounds, and started forward, brisk and purposeful. At the same time a small touring car that had been standing beside the curb before the ladies' waiting room curved around and rolled smoothly out across the black pavement toward the Welcome arch.

Car and pedestrian reached the crossing at the same time. The driver, a portly, gray-haired gentleman, tooted a warning and swerved over on the crossing. Checked by the sound of the horn the traveler came to an abrupt halt and stood poised, waiting for the automobile to glide past.

The elderly driver was too intent on steering the machine to give further heed to him. But the matronly lady in the rear seat looked in his direction and met his gaze full and direct. Instantly she flung out her hand and leaned toward him, her face aglow with surprise and delight.

"Will!" she cried. "Stop, Karl, stop! Don't you see Will?"

The car came to a stand within its own length, and the dignified driver twisted about to peer at the traveler. As he met the young man's look of well-bred annoyance his joyful astonishment became clouded with doubt. But the doubt vanished and left him beaming with cocksure delight.

"It is Will!" he exclaimed. "Most unexpected! Such a—a—" "My dear Will! My dear boy!" broke in the lady.

For the first time the traveler rallied from the half daze into which he had been thrown by this sudden attack. "I beg your pardon, madam," he interrupted the lady. "You have rather the advantage of me. Evidently you mistake me for some friend who has been away."

He smiled as if in sympathetic amusement, but the others at once became grave. The lady gazed at him in shocked surprise. The gentleman replied to him with dignified irritation: "This is no occasion for practical jokes, Will. Very unlike you! Merely because you have grown a mustache is no reason why you should—"

"One moment, sir," broke in the young man, and he drew out his card case. "My name is Clinton—Richard Clinton. I am a stranger in Denver—"

"It won't do, won't do, Will!" irritably rejoined the older man. "You've changed a great deal—wonderful improvement. But of course it's all owing to your complete recovery. Never saw you look so robust. There's a resemblance in your voice—It's no use affecting the Boston accent. You can't disguise your voice."

"Sir, it is you who insist upon a practical joke because of a fancied resemblance," declared the young man, his blue eyes glinting with annoyance. "Fancied!" exclaimed the lady.

"I beg your pardon, madam," he replied, and he presented his card to her. "As you see, my name is Richard Clinton. I am on my way through to the Coast and am stopping over in Denver only for the change of cars."

"Ah, yes, to be sure," she murmured, her eyes on his card. "So stupid of us. Pray pardon me a moment."

She turned her shoulder to him and leaned forward to hand the card to her portly companion.

"Oh! what can it be, Karl?" she whispered. "See!—to have had cards engraved! He really seems to be serious, and it's so unlike him to joke. Can it be possible that his loss of memory—that it has failed entirely?"

The bushy eyebrows of the gentleman came down over his keen eyes, and his face clouded with concern. Possible! Possible! he muttered. "Amnesia—dissociation—secondary personality! My dear, it's not only possible; it's highly probable! And I thought he was joking, poor boy!"

"Hush! Leave it to me. We must detain him. He cannot be allowed to leave town."

"No, no!—while in this state—impossible!"

The lady turned to the young man with an air of gracious apology. "Mr.—Clinton, you hear my husband. We cannot allow you to leave the state without first having made amends to you for this—this annoying mistake."

"Pardon me, rather, for my rudeness," he hastened to reply.

"It must have seemed to you so impertinent," she insisted. "Only, you see, our friend—Will Lowrie, you know—" She paused expectantly, but his clear gaze betrayed no more than polite attention. She flung up her hand in a little gesture of bewilderment. "You are Will—and yet your expression—Pardon me, but if only you realized what an extraordinary resemblance! . . . As I was going to say, Mr. Lowrie has been away more than half a year. He was quite ill when my husband took him east. This—it is as if he had come back to us strong and well."

"A perfectly natural mistake," the young man good-humoredly reassured her. "Two persons between whom there is only a moderately close resemblance are often mistaken for one another when apart, though their differences, once they are together, may be very noticeable."

"But you and Will!" she replied. "Even after your explanation I have to refuse to believe my own eyes. I have no doubt that my husband, as well as myself—Pardon me, I am

Mrs. Kirkland, and this is my husband, Mr. Clinton—Doctor Kirkland."

The young man met the introduction with a manner nicely balanced between well-bred reserve and cordial warmth. He bowed to the lady and stepped forward alongside the car to grasp the chubby hand of the physician.

"It is a happy case of mistaken identity that gives me the pleasure of your acquaintance," he remarked.

"Very!" agreed the physician, masking his diagnosing scrutiny under a benevolent smile. "The pleasure is not all yours, Mr.—Clinton."

"Indeed, no, Mr. Clinton!" vivaciously confirmed the lady. "Even if it were for no more than your resemblance to Will—It's simply absurd how like you are. I have to keep reminding myself that you are not he. It makes me feel quite as if you were an old friend. How long did you say you expect to remain in town?"

"My train leaves shortly before midnight."

"Not tonight?"

"Yes."

"But that never will do! You say you are a stranger in Denver. You must stop over a few days at least to see our beautiful city. You are not hurried by business?"

He hesitated. "Denver has the name of being a cold town to strangers."

"That is a baseless calumny, as we shall prove to you," she declared with redoubled graciousness. "Since we have become acquainted in this delightfully unconventional manner you must pardon the unconventionality of an invitation to dine with us on such short notice."

"It is most kind of you," he acknowledged. "But my trunk—"

"No, no; just as you are—quite informal," she forestalled his objection. He could not resist her cordiality. "Since you are so kind!"

"Jump in," directed the physician with an urgency almost peremptory.

Smiling in response to the general cordiality, the traveler opened the door of the car and took the seat beside the lady.

Doctor Kirkland was too careful a driver to have any glances to spare for his passengers after he had guided his car up through the business streets of the city to one of the most quiet of the Capitol hill avenues.

They went on a few blocks south and then more swiftly eastward. At last the physician brought his car to a stop at the curb before a residence set in a plot of emerald green that merged with the lawn of Congress park.

"Here we are—home!" said Mrs. Kirkland, in a sprightly attempt to win some indication of remembrance from the young man at her side. "No doubt Ellen will be awaiting us."

Her companion's look spoke only of polite inquiry. The mention of home and of Ellen had alike failed to stir him.

"I referred to my daughter," she explained. "Ellen went on a motor ride to the foothills with Amy—Miss Lowrie, you know—and some of their girl friends."

Again she looked closely into the face of her companion. But the name of Amy Lowrie brought no flash of memory into his frank blue eyes. He stepped down to hand his hostess from the car.

A neat little maid came darting from the front porch of the house down across the sloping lawn to the parked sidewalk. "Doctor," she called, "here's a phone message. Urgent case at the sanitarium."

The physician took the note and read it in a glance. "H'm—quite true. That new psychopath. Must go." He nodded to his wife as he stepped back into the car. "Excuse me to Mr. Clinton, my dear. I shall return in time for dinner."

Mrs. Kirkland smiled at her guest as the car glided away. "The time of a specialist is little more his own than that of an old-fashioned family doctor," she said. "My husband is an alienist." She turned to the housemaid. "Is Miss Ellen at home?"

"Yes, ma'am. She came back half an hour ago."

"Tell cook Mr. Clinton is to dine with us."

The little maid flitted up the lawn and into the house. Mrs. Kirkland and the guest sauntered after her. The west fronting of the porch afforded an across-town view of the snowy range, now haloed with a magnificent sunset. The traveler paused in the porch, midway between the steps and the door. "What a view!" he exclaimed.

"You enjoy it?" the lady was quick to catch him up. "Then, if I may ask you to excuse me for a few moments, I shall leave you out here in the porch."

He sprang to open the screen door for her. But the moment she had gone inside he went across to the porch wall and stood gazing at the sunset, forgetful of all else than the gold and scarlet and red that streamed up through the fleecy clouds above the indigo mountains and white peaks into the azure sky.

Around the corner of the house strolled a tall, fair-haired girl, carrying in one hand a novel and in the other a fan. The fiery splendor of the sunset caught her gaze and held it while she passed the corner and mounted the end steps of the porch.

At first sight of the unconscious traveler she straightened with an impulse of maidenly reserve. This was instantly succeeded by amazement as her eyes rested on the man's strong profile. She stopped, transfixed, gazing at the traveler as if dazed. She had the look of one unable to believe some great good fortune.

The traveler was so absorbed in his enjoyment of the view that he failed to heed the girl's light tread on the cement floor of the porch. She was almost within arm's length of him

"Clinton Is My Name—Richard Clinton."

when her joyful eagerness forced from her half-parted lips a breathless little cry: "Will! dear!"

The young man faced about with a start, and stared at the girl in blank surprise. He saw a beautiful, blushing face, a pair of gray eyes aglow with love, a shapely mouth curved in a tender smile. As his hand went automatically to his cap she half raised her arms as if she expected him to embrace her.

"Dear Will!" she repeated.

He hurriedly gave back a step. "I—I beg your pardon. Clinton is my name—Richard Clinton."

"O-a-h!" she exclaimed, shrinking back in turn, perplexed and alarmed at his strange behavior. "What—how—the way you look at me! Can it be possible that your loss of memory—" She clasped her hands to her bosom. "But it can't be! It can't! You never could forget me, never! Say it! Say you haven't—haven't forgotten me, Will!"

"But I—don't understand. It's some mistake. A case of—"

"It is, of course it is!" she broke in. "You admit it. Your poor dear head was at first confused. But now—now you remember me!"

"I am very sorry to disappoint you," he replied. "But I cannot permit you to deceive yourself. I do not remember you. I can only conjecture that you may be Miss Kirkland."

"Then you do remember, you do!" she cried.

She had come close to him, her eyes bright with hope. They were in a secluded corner of the porch. There were no houses across the street and no one was passing. She reached up her hands and clasped them on his shoulders while her eyes gazed up into his, full of loving expectancy.

His face, already embarrassed, flushed crimson. He drew her quivering hands down from his shoulders with gentle force and stepped away.

"Miss Kirkland!" he begged. "Calm yourself. This—it is most unfortunate. Had you first seen your mother—had she explained to you—prepared you."

"Explained? Prepared?"

"But I must insist, Miss Kirkland, that I—" smiled with relief. "Here is your mother."

The girl darted along the porch to clasp her mother's arm. "Mamma!" she appealed. "What is it? Tell me! Will insists he is not—not himself. It—it frightens me!"

"My dear," soothed Mrs. Kirkland, "there is no reason, none whatever. Had you been in your room—" She smiled at the guest. "You will understand, Mr. Clinton, the resemblance being so absurdly close. The child is excited—not quite herself. So great a shock. If you will kindly excuse us a few minutes."

"I am very sorry," he said. "Perhaps it would be better if I should go."

"Oh! no, no! Do not go!" hysterically cried the girl.

"Hush, dear," reproved her mother. "Mr. Clinton is not going. He is to stay and dine with us."

"If you really wish it," he assented. "Then you'll not go?" exclaimed the girl.

"Of course not, Ellen," said her mother. "Come in with me."

URGES BUYING FOREST LANDS

Forest Reservation Commission
Plans to Relieve Shortage of Timber.

SPRUCE SUPPLY EXHAUSTED

Millions of Acres of Land Unsuitable for Agriculture Could Be Used for Growing Timber—More Money
Is Needed.

Washington.—Further purchases by the government of forest lands in the southern Appalachian and White mountains, to relieve the present shortage of timber in those regions, are advocated by the national forest reservation commission in a report just issued, entitled "Progress of Purchase of Eastern National Forests." This commission is the body authorized to pass on timber land purchases made under the Weeks law, and is composed of the secretaries of agriculture, interior and war, and four members of the congress.

"The supply of spruce in the eastern United States available for paper stock is nearly exhausted," the publication states. "Eastern building material is no longer adequate fully to meet industrial demands, the future supply of hardwoods is threatened and will not be sufficient unless prompt measures are taken for maintaining the productivity of the hardwood forests."

The situation can be helped materially, says the report, by arranging that lands not suitable for agriculture—of which there are 30,000,000 acres in the eastern mountains—shall be used for growing timber. Of this 30,000,000 acres approximately 1,800 acres have been purchased by the government under the provisions of the Weeks law, which authorizes the acquisition of lands on the head waters of navigable streams for inclusion within national forests.

Additional Appropriation Needed.
Appropriations totaling $11,000,000 have already been made under the Weeks law, and the expenditure of all but about $300,000 of the amount available for purchasing lands has been authorized by the commission. Twenty-one purchase areas, with a total area of approximately 7,000,000 acres, have been designated in nine states in the important hardwood and spruce regions of the Appalachian and White mountains. In 17 of these, purchases have been made. Since the purchase program was developed other states, including Kentucky, have enacted legislation authorizing the acquisition of lands for national forest purposes. To carry out the purchase program as outlined by the commission an appropriation of $2,000,000 per year for a period of five years, beginning with the fiscal year 1921, has been recommended by the commission.

The average price of the 1,841,934 acres whose acquisition has been authorized by the commission is $5.26 per acre.

All of the lands bought are capable of producing valuable crops of timber.
During the fiscal year 1919 receipts for timber sold from the area then acquired—1,347,690 acres—amounted to $71,942 under the conservative method of cutting practiced by the government. The timber that was sold was very largely salvage and it is expected that the returns from timber sales will steadily increase.

Benefit to Navigable Steamers.

In addition to the financial return,
the establishment of national forests results in a decided benefit to navigable streams through the modifying influence of the forest cover on erosion, according to the report. It states that the newly created forests are being widely used for recreation by residents of the nearby cities and that they are meeting other important economic needs. Watersheds which supply domestic water to 17 municipalities are owned in whole or in part by the government. In addition, 29 municipalities secure their water supply from lands which have not yet been acquired, but which are located within the forests. Government control assures the sanitation of such watersheds without interfering with the use of the land for timber-producing purposes.

Port Optic Missing. Rejected by Marines

Chicago.—Why should a man without a left eye be barred from military service? That is what Anthony J. Howard of Decatur wanted to know when he was rejected for enlistment in the United States marine corps at its local station.
"I don't see why you won't take me," said Howard. "Don't you have to squint or close the left eye when you shoot? I wouldn't have to waste any motion doing that. You need modern efficiency methods in your service, I can see that."
